

Workplace Violence Mitigation

“Workplace violence is the act or threat of physical violence, harassment, intimidation, or other threatening disruptive behavior that occurs at the work site...” OSHA

In today’s environment, organizations that are not prepared for workplace violence risk loss of life, loss of assets, damage to their brand, and loss of revenue.

Workplace violence can stem from a variety of circumstances: High risk terminations, domestic issues, economic factors causing mass lay offs, disgruntled employees, work-related stressors, and/or company or political strikes.
